

Adam Collins

CHIEF COMMUNICATIONS AND CORPORATE AFFAIRS OFFICER
MOLSON COORS

Business Experience:

Prior to his current role, Mr. Collins served as vice president of communications and community affairs for MillerCoors, the U.S. division of Molson Coors. Prior to joining Molson Coors, Mr. Collins served as the communications director for Chicago Mayor Rahm Emanuel where he led all strategic communications for the mayor and his cabinet. Mr. Collins also served as communications director for the Chicago Police Department, as press secretary for Wisconsin Governor Jim Doyle, as communications director for Wisconsin Lieutenant Governor Barbara Lawton and in senior roles on a number of political campaigns.

Education:

Mr. Collins holds a bachelor's degree in political science from the University of Louisville.